A book which delivers the title. This is a conjugation of truths derived from different religions, philosophies, poets and authors, all of which provide fantastic and moving insight into the human experience through verse, proverbs and various scripture. It achieves this without being didactic, self-absorbed, secular or trivial. A book you can cherish.

I was drawn to this book, initially, by the title, "A Dancing Star". I glanced through some of the pages and was immediately won over by the random selection I had browsed. Since then, I have gone to this book so many times. It is inspirational, thought provoking and truly healing! As with any book of selections, not every selection will inspire the same feelings in everyone, but the majority of them, for me, have been excellent food for thought and inspiring, as well. Since I first purchased this book, several years ago, I have gone to it numerous times, and have given it as a gift to special people in my life...all have praised the book. It's one of my favorites!

The book itself was in good condition; however, the back of the paper jacket had white label stickers all over it which were not able to be removed. I would advise sellers not to put any stickers on book jackets if they are selling. Nevertheless, I was most grateful to be able to find this out-of-print book for sale at such a reasonable price.

"The words that enlighten the soul are more precious than jewels" - Hazrat Khan. Quotes, poems, bits of philosophy, East, West, saints, sinners, poets, authors all contribute to this inspiring collection of quotes. Some simple, some pretty deep, all are beautiful thoughts. A friend once gave it to me and years later I still reference it. "When the heart weeps for what it has lost, the spirit laughs for what it has found". Sufi aphorism.
